Financial Ombudsman
Service

The Financial Ombudsman Service is the independent statutory service for settling individual disputes between businesses providing financial services, and their customers. It plays a key role in enhancing consumer protection and confidence in financial markets. In 2009/10 the ombudsman service resolved over 165,000 complaints with a budget of around £100m. The service is governed by a non-executive board. The board's role is to ensure the service is able to carry out its work effectively and independently. The chief executive/chief ombudsman is responsible for the ombudsmen and adjudicators who handle individual complaints.

the role

- contribute to the overall strategy and direction of the ombudsman service
- scrutinise the performance of the service in meeting its goals and objectives
- ensure that the service is able to continue to operate independently and without outside influence in making its decisions
- act as ambassador for the service the candidate

- experience of strategic decision-making and board level governance
- background in, or an understanding of, one or more of the following: law and the wider judicial system, audit and accountancy, customer insight and marketing, central government and public policy
- commitment to the ethos, values and independence of the service

... the power to settle financial complaints

Committed to diversity and equality
